4-ANJOZOROBE

ANJOZOROBE, 2 hours north-east of Tana, a small town perched along the ridges of 2 hills. From the volunteer house, there's a great view across a wide plain and curving river. The house is inside a small walled courtyard along with the house of host and his wife. He is a teacher of Malagasy history and folklore, and his daughter speaks good English. The area is rich in history and myths. The population of Anjozorobe is about 60 000 adults

Their economy is based on agriculture, growing rice, onions, tobacco, and keeping small herds of cattle. Six kilometres from the town is a rain-forest area called "Alan' Anjozorobe". At 66 500 hectares, it is among the last major remnants of natural primary forest in the Malagasy highlands, and it contains various endemic fauna and flora species.
